The Light of Love

I think it's safe to say that in living rooms across America there will be fewer people gathered around the Christmas tree then we are accustomed to. In spite of that, I'm thinking this may be the Christmas that engenders the most real Christmas spirit than we've seen in years and years. One sign of that is that Christmas trees have been going up for weeks all over America! I have a hunch that this Christmas we will see more glistening tinsel, strings of lights and angels atop the trees shining through the windows of America and penetrating the hearts of people in every Burg, Township and City throughout the country.

Could it be that this year will be less commercial and more intimate than ever? Maybe our cell phones will be less active with people reading their texts and more active with people actually looking into the faces of their loved ones through FaceTime, Zoom and Skype. Maybe our physical absence will spark our desire and appreciation for family, and kindle a yearning for their physical presence and real hugs for moms and dads, grandma's and grandpa's, aunts and uncles, kids and cousins - next Christmas and all Christmas's to come!

As we celebrate the Christ in Christmas it honors all faiths as we celebrate the one tradition that this holiday season holds for all, the light of love.

Happy Holy-Days!
Jeff
